20 The United States of America ("United States"), by and through its undersigned
21 counsel, hereby submits this Reply to Plaintiff's Opposition to Motion to Dismiss, and it
22 respectfully shows the following:

23 BACKGROUND

24 On December 6, 2008, Plaintiff filed a Complaint seeking damages pursuant to 26
25 U.S.C. §§ 7432 and 7433 in the amount of $100,000.00 plus fees and costs related to the 26 Internal Revenue Service's ("IRS") filing of federal tax liens against Plaintiff for his 27
28

1 outstanding employment tax liabilities for the fourth quarter of 1991 and the first quarter of
2 1992 and for outstanding income tax liabilities for the tax years 1993 and 1994. On February
3 28, 2008, the United States filed a Motion to Dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction
4 and for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1)
5 and 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, respectively. On May 2, 2008, Plaintiff
6 filed an Opposition to the Motion to Dismiss (“Plaintiff’s Opposition”). A hearing on this
7 matter is currently scheduled for May 16, 2008, at 1:30 p.m.

8 Plaintiff’s Opposition contains allegations and arguments that addresses the merits
9 of his claim. (Opp. 3–8.) However, because the United States’ Motion to Dismiss is based 10 on jurisdictional grounds only, the merits of Plaintiff’s damages claims are irrelevant at this 11 stage. In response to the United States’ jurisdictional arguments contained in its Motion to 12 Dismiss, Plaintiff’s Opposition argues that: (1) he has exhausted his administrative remedies
13 for his claims under 26 U.S.C. §§ 7432 and 7433; and (2) he has properly stated a claim for 14 damages under 26 U.S.C. §§ 7432 and 7433. (Opp. 9–12.) For the reasons set forth below,
15 and for the reasons previously articulated in the United States’ Motion to Dismiss, Plaintiff’s
16 arguments are incorrect as a matter of law.

17 ARGUMENT

18 A. As a Matter of Law, Plaintiff Did Not Exhaust His Administrative 19 Remedies for His Claims Under 26 U.S.C. § 7432 and 7433.

20 The Complaint asserts claims for damages under 26 U.S.C. § 7432 for failure to 21 release a tax lien and under 26 U.S.C. § 7433 for unauthorized tax collection activities.
22 (Compl. ¶¶ 1, 2, 6.) Plaintiff’s Opposition asserts, for the first time, that because the IRS sent 23 Plaintiff a written letter on November 7, 2007 denying his purported administrative claim for 24 damages, he has exhausted his administrative remedies under 28 U.S.C. § 2675 in order to 25 maintain his suit under §§ 7432 and 7433. (Opp. 9–10.) This is wrong as a matter of law.

26 Section 2675 requires a plaintiff to exhaust administrative remedies prior to bringing 27 a claim under the Federal Torts Claim Act (“FTCA”). See 28 U.S.C. § 2675; Vacek v. U.S.

1 Postal Serv., 447 F.3d 1248, 1250 (9th Cir. 2006); Fishburn v. Brown, 125 F.3d 979, 982
 2 (6th Cir. 1997). Specifically, under § 2675, an administrative claim must be “finally denied”
 3 by the federal agency prior to bringing suit against the United States in federal court. 28
 4 U.S.C. § 2675. Plaintiff’s Opposition argues that because the IRS denied his purported
 5 administrative claim on November 7, 2007, he has complied with § 2675 and has properly
 6 exhausted his administrative remedies. However, since the Complaint does not allege any 7 claim under the FTCA, § 2675, as a matter of law, simply does not apply in this case. Cf.
 8 Fishburn, 125 F.3d at 982 (recognizing that “[a]ctions connected with the assessment or 9 collection of taxes . . . are expressly excluded from the [FTCA]”).

10 The appropriate requirements for exhausting administrative remedies for claims for 11 damages under §§ 7432 and 7433 are contained in Treasury Regulations §§ 301.7432-1 and 12 301.7433-1. Plaintiff’s “Notice of Intent to Sue the United States of America,” which 13 contained a reference to § 7432 only (Martinez Decl. Ex. L.), was deficient and did not 14 satisfy the Treasury Regulations for the reasons set forth in the United States’ Motion to 15 Dismiss. Further, Plaintiff did not submit any administrative claim to the IRS for his claim
 16 under § 7433, nor does he allege that he did in his Opposition. Because the failure to comply
 17 with the regulations deprives a court of jurisdiction even where the IRS has received actual
 18 notice of the claim, Venen v. United States, 38 F.3d 100, 103 (3d Cir. 1994); Amwest Surety
 19 Ins. Co. v. United States, 28 F.3d 690, 696 (7th Cir. 1994), this Court lacks subject matter
 20 jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claims for damages under §§ 7432 and 7433 and should dismiss
 21 them pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

22 B. Even if Plaintiff Had Exhausted His Administrative Remedies, Plaintiff’s
 23 Claims for Damages under 26 U.S.C. §§ 7432 and 7433 Fail to State a
 24 Claim Upon Which Relief Can Be Granted.

25 Plaintiff’s Opposition also asserts that the Complaint states proper claims under 26 §§ 7432 and 7433 because it alleges that “the actions of the IRS interfered with an prevented
 27 funding of a pending escrow which cost plaintiff a lot of money.” (Opp. 11–12.) As stated
 28 in the United States’ Motion to Dismiss, despite this broad statement, the Complaint contains

1 no allegations of how the actions of the IRS were the proximate cause of the damages
2 suffered, or how the figure demanded, $100,000.00, was derived, as required by Treasury
3 Regulations § 301.7432 and 301.7433.

4 Plaintiff's Opposition further asserts that Plaintiff is entitled to recover "damages for
5 the inconvenience, emotional distress and loss of reputation occasioned by the IRS' illegal
6 activities." (Opp. 11-12.) As noted in the United States' Motion to Dismiss, this is 7 expressly prohibited by the Treasury Regulations unless a plaintiff can demonstrate that they
8 resulted in actual pecuniary damages. Treas. Reg. §§ 301.7433-1(b)(1), 301-7433-1(c)(1)
9 ("Injuries such as inconvenience, emotional distress and loss of reputation are compensable
10 only to the extent that they result in actual pecuniary damages."). Plaintiff's Complaint, nor 11 his Opposition, make no such allegation.

12 Accordingly, dismissal of Plaintiff's claim for damages under §§ 7432 and 7433 is 13 appropriate pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) because it is clear that no relief could be 14 granted under any set of facts that could be proven consistent with the allegations set forth
15 in the Complaint. See Williamson v. Gen. Dynamics Corp., 208 F.3d 1144, 1149 (9th Cir.
16 2000); Big Bear Lodging Ass'n v. Snow Summit, Inc., 182 F.3d 1096, 1101 (9th Cir. 1999).

CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, the United States respectfully requests that this Court dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction and for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The United States also requests that this Court grant any other relief to which it may be entitled.

DATED this 5th day of May, 2008.
